He works in tandem with behavioral health and primary care providers in providing comprehensive psychiatry and mental health treatment. In addition to general psychiatry, Dr. Tepe also specializes in treating individuals who are struggling with both mental health and substance abuse disorders. He is very excited to be a part of Family Health's unique integrated service model for the treatment of mental health disorders.

What is Tele-psychiatry?

There is no question that telemedicine has become an essential service within healthcare in the United States. The lack of access to proper psychiatric care is one of the biggest struggles of the American public health system. Telepsychiatry has opened doors to obtaining quality care-despite geographical location.

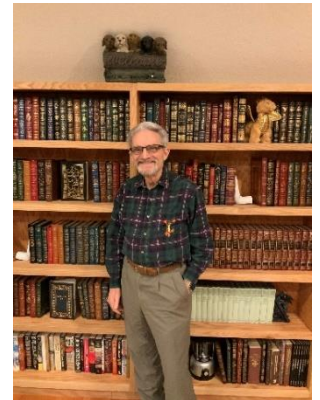

Telepsychiatry is one of the most promising developments in the fight to provide more patient-centered, affordable, and effective interventions for individuals who need psychiatric services and behavioral health counseling.

Tele-psychiatry sessions are private and confidential. Over time, patients and practitioners develop a strong relationship with their behavioral health and primary care team.

Dr. Tepe is currently residing in Ohio. He completed his Bachelor of Science degree at Xavier University then went on to medical school at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine. Most recently, Dr. Tepe has been providing psychiatric services within mental health centers in Ohio for over 20 years.

Dr. Tepe has a multitude of hobbies including collecting fine art from living artists that he meets at auctions. He spends many hours reading a wide variety of books. He loves to make cheeses and baked goods including growing several cultures for sourdough bread. He also enjoys spending time with his four-year-old chocolate lab named Baldr.
